GAME CHANGERS

INTRODUCTION

With the approach of the postponed 2020 Tokyo Summer Olympics, we asked people in 28 countries their view on the event: Should it go ahead? How interested are they personally? What is the impact of the Games on wider society?

SUPPORT

Overall, support for the Olympics taking place in summer 2021 is muted, in part due to concerns over Covid-19. Less than half (43%, global country average) agree that it should go ahead. 57% disagree.

People in host nation Japan are among the most doubtful: 22% say the Olympics should go ahead while 78% say it shouldn't.

However, 62% worldwide agree that the Olympics will be an important opportunity for the world to come together following the pandemic.

INTEREST

Levels of interest in the Olympics vary across the world. India, South Africa and China are most interested while Belgium, South Korea and Japan are least.

Football/soccer emerges as the most popular Olympic event, with Saudi Arabia the most interested. Athletics is #2 (South Africa is most interested), then Aquatics (Hungary).

Majorities in 13 countries are very/somewhat interested in the Olympics, but majorities in 15 countries are not very/not at all interested.

IMPACT

On average, 80% worldwide say that the Olympics inspire younger generations to participate in sport.

Two-thirds (65%) agree with the uniting power of the Olympics. This falls to one-third (36%) in Japan.

Approval of using government funding to support Olympic athletes is at 67% globally, but ranges widely.

Opinion is split regarding whether there is too much nationalism on display at the Olympics (55% agree, 45% disagree).

AN OPPORTUNITY TO HEAL?

However, on average, 62% say that the Olympics will be an important opportunity for the world to come together following the pandemic.

Turkey and Saudi Arabia once again show the highest levels of agreement.

South Korea, Japan and Germany are the only countries where fewer than 50% say this is the case.

Q: The Tokyo Olympic Games will be an important opportunity for the world to come together following the pandemic.

INTEREST IN THE OLYMPICS

A group of people, including a man with a beard and a woman, are cheering and raising their arms in a celebratory manner. They are wearing plaid shirts. In the background, there are flags of various countries, including the Swiss flag, and a warm, dimly lit atmosphere suggests a social gathering or event.

INTEREST IN THE OLYMPICS

On average across 28 countries, more say they are not interested (54%) in the Olympics than are interested (46%).

India, South Africa and China are most interested, while Belgium, South Korea and Japan are least engaged.

Male respondents are split 50:50 while more women say they are not interested (59% vs. 41%). Older generations also express less interest in the Games.

METHODOLOGY

These are the results of a 28-market survey conducted by Ipsos on its Global Advisor online platform. Ipsos interviewed a total of 19,510 adults aged 18-74 in the United States, Canada, Malaysia, South Africa, and Turkey, and 16- 74 in 23 other markets between 21st May and 4th June, 2021.

The sample consists of approximately 1,000 individuals in each of Australia, Belgium, Brazil, Canada, mainland China, France, Germany, Great Britain, Italy, Japan, Spain, and the U.S., and 500 individuals in each of Argentina, Chile, Colombia, Hungary, India, Malaysia, Mexico, the Netherlands, Peru, Poland, Russia, Saudi Arabia, South Africa, South Korea, Sweden, and Turkey.

The samples in Argentina, Australia, Belgium, Canada, France, Germany, Great Britain, Hungary, Italy, Japan, the Netherlands, Poland, South Korea, Spain, Sweden, and the U.S. can be taken as representative of their general adult population under the age of 75.

The samples in Brazil, mainland China, Chile, Colombia, India, Malaysia, Mexico, Peru, Russia, Saudi Arabia, South Africa and Turkey are more urban, more educated, and/or more affluent than the general population. The survey results for these countries should be viewed as reflecting the views of the more “connected” segment of their population. The data is weighted so that each market’s sample composition best reflects the demographic profile of the adult population according to the most recent census data.

“The Global Country Average” reflects the average result for all the countries and markets where the survey was conducted. It has not been adjusted to the population size of each country or market and is not intended to suggest a total result.

Where results do not sum to 100 or the ‘difference’ appears to be +/-1 more/less than the actual, this may be due to rounding, multiple responses or the exclusion of “don’t know” or not stated responses.

The precision of Ipsos online polls are calculated using a credibility interval with a poll of 1,000 accurate to +/- 3.5 percentage points and of 500 accurate to +/- 5.0 percentage points. For more information on the Ipsos use of credibility intervals, please visit the Ipsos website. The publication of these findings abides by local rules and regulations.
